Although one is not likely to find any Bahian black who has not been given at baptism a "Christian name," nicknames are very common, and many individuals are much better known by them than by their given names. Among such apelidos one will occasionally discover terms of probable African derivation; for instance, Okê, Bábá Cumdê, Cobê, Oum, Tau-édê, and Au-weh, all nicknames of members of a local labor union; or, among personages in the fetish world, such names as: Manoelzinho de Oxóssi, Lourenço Lemba, Maria de Tempo, Senhora de Yemanjá, João de Zázé, and Flaviano Cavungo, each of which recalls the African orixá to which the individual in question is dedicated.

Exercising considerable prestige among a portion of the Bahian population is the babalaô, or olhador, whose primary function, it seems, is to foretell the future; the curandeiro, who by means of herbs, prayers, and other magical manipulations seeks both to treat and to prevent disease; and the feiticeiro, or "witch doctor," who, for a price, works black magic. The office of the babalaô is occasionally exercised by the pae de santo, or priest of the fetish cult, although his function is more particularly that of supervising the rituals and public ceremonies of the cult and overseeing the sacred properties. To some extent he also exercises the function of a curandeiro.

[10] A form of greeting recalled by older blacks but rarely used today is as follows: If the individuals are social equals, each lifts his hands, palms outward, and grasps the hands of the other in such a way that the fingers of the one are interlaced with the fingers of the other, after which the "ogan grip" is exchanged; if not social equals, the individual of greater prestige places his right hand over the closed hands of the other.
